Infection Control for Individual Safety and A New Movement for Epidemic Prevention

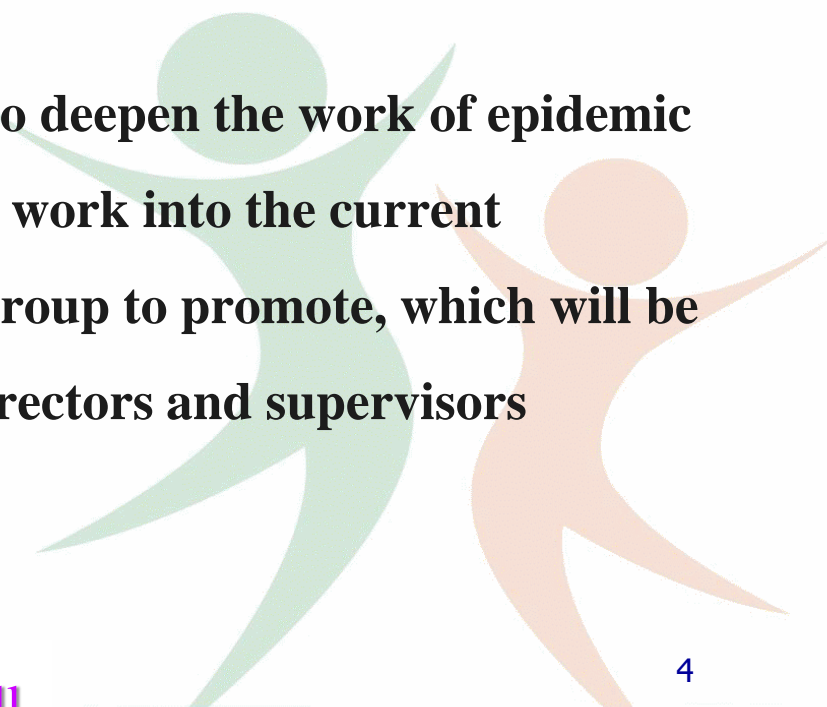

- The COVID-19 not only threatens life and health, but also has a huge impact on life, economy, and human interaction.
- In this September, the Wenshan Safe Community invited representatives of civil affairs, health administration, medical institutions, and nursing homes to collect and consolidate opinions in a focus group discussion on the impact and response of the epidemic.

Infection Control for Individual Safety and A New Movement for Epidemic Prevention

- Specific suggestions are shown on the next page
- This result has been presented at the annual conference of Taiwanese Injury Prevention and Safety Promotion Association on October 2.
- Wenshan Safe Community intends to deepen the work of epidemic prevention and safety, integrate this work into the current working groups or establish a new group to promote, which will be discussed in the board meeting of directors and supervisors

Suggestions for Infection Control and Safety

It is generally expected that the COVID-19 epidemic will not end in a short period of time, and there is a high chance that it will turn into flu. Based on this expectation, several suggestions are made:

- Vaccine rate is the key, and it is also the foundation of normal life and economic recovery
- Enhance the knowledge about viruses and epidemic prevention
 - Let the people have the correct knowledge of epidemic prevention
 - There must be a correct information release unit that the people can trust

- Advocating a new movement for epidemic prevention
 - Wash hands frequently, wear masks, maintain social distancing, pay attention to the maintenance of environmental hygiene, etc.
 - Simplify the life and reduce to unnecessary places, such as hypermarkets, shops, etc.
 - Refine and detail the current TV-promoted films so that the public can pay more attention
 - Following the Asian flu epidemic in 1957, the elementary schools at that time would sing together the ten creeds of hygiene, making the essentials of epidemic prevention catchy.

Closely Integrating with the District Office/Action Group to Improve Efficiency

- The district office invites representatives from bureaus and offices of the city government to conduct the “City’s Checking and Feedback Reports Meeting” to assist in solving unsafe issues in the district
- The promotion and construction of safety works can be proposed by the borough leaders. The district office will invite the working groups and secretariats of the safe community to attend the meeting. All proposed safety works will be included in the supervision and evaluation lists and win the city government’s support through this meeting mechanism

Thank You for the Attention
